Wm. A. Baldwin Veteran Will County Newspaper Man Dies Suddenly

Wm. A. Baldwin veteran Will county newspaper man and a resident of Joliet for many years died Sunday noon in the St. Joseph hospital, Joliet following a heart attack suffered Friday night.

It was thru the kindly interest taken in the present editor of this newspaper that the latter got into the newspaper business.

Back in 1910 when the editor started as correspondent for the Joliet Weekly News, Mr. Baldwin was in charge of the country correspondence and also served as circulation manager of that paper. He often visited Frankfort, Mokena; Tinley Park, Orland Park and in fact worked thru the same territory now served by The News-Bulletin, The Tinley Park Times and The Orland Park Herald. After serving as a correspondent for Mokena only a short time, Mr. Baldwin increased the territory and started the budding newspaper man in a wider field taking in New Lenox, and Frankfort as well as Tinley Park. Later on the field of activity was still more enlarged and the one time correspondent became city reporter of the Joliet Daily News. He worked with Mr. Baldwin on various news assignments and a warm friendship sprang up which has endured thruout the years and it was with sorrow that the editor learned of the death of his esteemed friend, but the memory of this sincere friendship will always be treasured.

Mr. Baldwin was born in Yates Center, Kansas October 8, 1870 and entered the newspaper business as a carrier in Joliet when he was 10 years old. From that time on until the time of his death he never lost interest in the press.

Serving as circulation manager on the old Joliet News, Mr. Baldwin with his brother the late Horace E. Baldwin maintained an active interest in civic affairs and the news of the day.

Leaving the News shortly after it was consolidated with the Joliet Herald in 1915, Mr. Baldwin became manager of an A&P store in Joliet and worked there until 1928. For the next eight years he was employed by the American Laundryowners Association and retired in 1936. He continued his newspaper career as a free lance writer and had written articles for Joliet papers just before his death.

The body laid in state at the Chamberlain and Grant mortuary from Tuesday until Wednesday afternoon when services were conducted at 1:30 o'clock with the Rev. Everett J. LeCompte and the Rev. Edw. E. Hastings officiating.

People from all walks of life including city and county officials paid their tributes of respect to the memory of a fearless and conscientious writer and a highly respected citizen. Thus closes the final chapter of the life of a real man and friend who endeavored to make the world a better place to live in during his 73 years of sojourn on earth.

Surviving are the widow, one son Paul one daughter Mrs. A. R. Welsch and two grandchildren.

"The Mayor" of Alpine enlivened the dinner hour with a wide variety of his famous witticisms in which he was joined by a number of the Association's humorists, thus the evening hour sped all to fast and it was with reluctance that the guests found that the time had flown so rapidly that the midnight hour was fast approaching at which time the party broke up and the guests departed declaring that the Association ought to sponsor more get togethers at which they can become better acquainted and enjoy the sociability of one another.

CALLS FOR A WIDE AND WISE WOMEN'S VOTE

Calling for a "wide and wise" women's vote, Mrs. Chas. W. Tillett, Assistant Chairman and Director of the Women's Division of the Democratic National Committee addressed a special meeting of the Will County Democratic Women's Organization, held at the Colonial Tea Room, Joliet Monday afternoon, Feb. 28.

Mrs. W. C. Davidson, Democratic Committee woman from Frankfort attended the meeting.

Mrs. Tillett was guest speaker with Miss Josephine Schain, only woman delegate to the United Nations Conference on Food and Agriculture held at Hot Springs, and Mrs. Blanche Fritz, Vice chairman of the Democratic State Committee. A luncheon and business meeting of the Will County Democratic Women's organization preceded the speaking. New officers elected were Mrs. Agnes Adman, Joliet, president; Mrs. Sue Glaven, Joliet, vice president; Mrs. Raymond O. Herkert, Joliet, Sec. and Mrs. Harold Downey, Treas. Joliet. At the meeting the Democratic women decided that they will soon appoint various committees which will carry out special functions of the organization.

Mrs. Tillett, pointing out that women on the home front had the preponderance of the vote said: "Working towards winning the war and peace isn't enough. We will have to think, too. The best of our thinking must go in our vote. As an American, I believe that the record of the party which has led the country in the past eleven years should be carefully studied. As a Democrat, I believe that record will stand up magnificently before fair study."

Miss Schain said, "We must face the fact that all chance of isolation is past. Mechanical developments have eliminated space so that we now measure distance by hours instead of miles. Our young men are fighting on a dozen fronts in order to protect our national interests. Shall this happen again or shall we help to organize the world on a basis of law and order. That is the choice before us; there is no alternative."

To Be Part of Super Highway System After War

Planning for some of the most expensive Super highways ever built in the U. S. is being carried forward by Cook County and the City of Chicago. The intention is to construct these roads immediately after the war, but preliminary costs already have been paid exceeding $1,000,000. Included in this highway plan is the construction of the Tri-state highway from Hammond, Ind. through the northeast section of Bremen and Orland townships and thence northwest to DuPage county.

In addition to this, the Wolf Rd. which is paved up to 143rd St. in Orland township, is to be extended on a straight line north and will be connected up with the Tri-State highway which will be one of the most important arteries of the Super highways in this section.

When the Mokena promoters of the Wolf Road were advocating the pavement of this highway from the Lincoln Highway north through Cook County their aim was to make Wolf Road an outer belt line connecting up with other main roads leading to Chicago.

Now after quite a number of years of inactivity this post-war project is going to make the ideals of the original Wolf Road promoters become a reality.

The Tri-state will enter Cook County from Indiana on Bernice St. in Lansing. Tri-state eventually will be along 175th and 171st Sts. to about Cicero Ave. and to DuPage County. Right of ways for the new proposed highways are to be condemned at a possible cost of $800,000. The Tri-State project is to be known as the Calumet Tri-state and will be an express parkway into Chicago from the south side over the Stony Island Avenue road. At 175th it will intersect with the tri-state highway and will be extended west from the Indiana line and eventually Calumet will be pushed farther south to connect with the Lincoln Highway.

Typical Window of Eighteenth Century

WE KNOW that the Eighteenth Century is often called the golden age of the cabinet makers. We know that the English cabinet makers, Chippendale, Hepplewhite, Sheraton and the Adam brothers, flourished then and that their work was copied by our own cabinet makers of the late Colonial period. The furniture types of their day have become standard with us but we seldom stop to think about the kind of curtains and draperies that were originally used with this furniture.

Visitors to the reconstructed village of Williamsburg, Va., are often surprised to find that Venetian blinds were the fashion long before the Revolution, and the well tailored canvas lined valance used with floor length chintz draperies also seem modern to them. Yet these were the curtain styles when ladies and gentlemen wore powdered wigs. Valances were made just as we make them today and were tacked to a valance board in pretty much the same manner as is shown here.

NOTE—This is the second of a series on modern adaptations of period curtain fashions. Another version of the shaped type of valance is given in BOOK 5 of the series of ten booklets on sewing for the home. To get copy of Book 5 send 15 cents direct to:

'Laughing Jackass' Brays; Is One of Meanest Birds

A sassy-looking, colorful bird which makes its home in Australia, frequently puzzles foreign visitors. The kookaburra, as the natives know it, has rightly been called the "laughing jackass," for it makes a sound like the braying of a jackass and it is one of the meanest birds living.

It eats small mammals, killing them by flying high with its victim in its beak and dropping it to destruction.

IN AN argument that begins with Buck Ewing, over 50 years ago, leading up to Bill Dickey through the 1943 campaign, there is sure to be a wide difference of opinion when it comes to naming the greatest catcher ever known.

Bill Dickey

At the Baseball Writers' annual pageant where Bill Dickey was honored, this debate broke out in many spots.

It became almost a rash. Buck Ewing—Bill Bergen—Roger Bresnahan—Johnny Kling—Ray Schalk—Billy Sullivan—Gabby Hartnett—Mickey Cochrane and then Bill Dickey. These, at least, were among the best.

In the forgotten days that have slipped over the hill I once played many rounds of golf with John Montgomery Ward who pitched to Buck Ewing.

"There will never be another Buck Ewing," Ward once told me. "He is the top. I still remember the day when Buck split the first two fingers on his bare hand. There was so much blood on the ball that I couldn't throw it. I insisted that he retire. Buck almost tore my head off. He finally agreed to tape or tie the two fingers together, but he refused to quit. A great hitter—brilliant back of the plate."

Johnny Kling of the Cubs was a master. He was the only catcher I ever knew who stopped Ty Cobb's base running, who pinned Ty down.

McGraw always named Roger Bresnahan at the top of the list.

"Imagine a star catcher," he told me once, "fast enough to be my lead-off man. Bresnahan is the greatest catcher I ever saw—and I know how good Johnny Kling was."

The Three Best

Looking back a few years ago I recall the argument a few of us had with Joe McCarthy, who knows more than one man's share of this baseball business.

At that time McCarthy was a bit uncertain as to whether Gabby Hartnett or Bill Dickey should get the call. At that spot beneath Florida's whispering palms, the Yankee manager was a trifle inclined in Hartnett's direction.

There was noisy and rugged opposition from the supporters of Mickey Cochrane, a great catcher, a dangerous hitter, a fiery leader. It was finally agreed that the three greatest catchers in the memory of all present, and some of them went back 40 years, were Bill Dickey, Gabby Hartnett and Mickey Cochrane in no particular order.

But after that date Bill Dickey, in his quail-hunting Arkansas fashion, moved along to break many major catching records—

1. To be the first catcher that ever drove across over 100 runs in four successive seasons—
2. To be the first catcher that ever caught over 100 games for 13 successive years—
3. To be the first catcher that ever took rookie pitchers, such as Alton Donald, and turned their efforts into long winning stretches, such as 12 in a row.
4. To be the first catcher that ever averaged well over .300 for 16 big league years.

It is difficult to pick out anybody and say he was a better catcher or a more useful adjunct to a ball club than Gabby Hartnett or Mickey Cochrane. For these were two great ballplayers in every way, along every known road. They had more flame than Bill Dickey had. But against this both lacked his coolness and calmness; his unruffled poise with trouble in the offing.

Dickey has always been a master at handling pitchers, especially young pitchers inclined to lose control or blow up at critical moments. You might call Bill the Great Soother. He massages their shaken nerves.

I also recall a few years back talking to American league pitchers who faced the Yankees. I asked a few of the best how it felt to face Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig.

Several had this to say—"In the clutch I'd rather face either than Bill Dickey. He's murder with men on bases in a tight game."

Bill Dickey was that way when he came to the Yankees in 1928 and began starring in 1929. He was still that way when Mort Cooper fed him a fast one in the last world series and Bill closed out the show with his game-winning home run.

Slosson, Billiard Artist

Charles Peterson, most famous of all the trick shot billiard players and one of the game's greatest artists, casts his vote for George Slosson as the top of the veterans, whatever the sport.

"Just consider," C. Peterson said. "George Slosson once gave exhibitions for Gen. U. S. Grant and Adeline Patti, and that wasn't yesterday. He was a great billiard player over 70 years ago and he is a great billiard player today at 91.

THE naming of Bob Coleman to manage the Boston Braves for the 1944 season came as an upset to a good many baseball followers.

Coleman was named to the post after Casey Stengel resigned following a change in ownership of the National league club. The Braves were thought to be in the market for a "big name" pilot. Such a move was predicted when Stengel resigned "to avoid embarrassment on the part of the new owners."

But Coleman got the job—together with the good wishes of a lot of New Englanders. A native of Huntington, Ind., he has been connected with the Braves' organization since 1937, when he became manager of the Scranton farm club.

The 53-year-old mentor has had more than 20 years managerial experience in the minor leagues, where he figured in the development of such stars as Al Javery, Hank Greenberg, Tommy Bridges, Eldon Auker, Roy Cullenbine, Dizzy Trout and Whitlow Wyatt.

Coleman began his career as a catcher in 1910 with Davenport, Iowa, in the Three-Eye league, playing his first major league baseball with the Pittsburgh Pirates three years later. In 1916 he was sold to the Indians where he played until he entered a war plant during the First World War. He won his first pennant in 1922 as manager of Terre Haute in the Three-Eye league and later served as coach of the Boston Red Sox and Detroit Tigers.

Good Beginning

He served as a coach under Casey Stengel and when Stengel was out last season with a broken leg, Coleman directed the club with a large measure of success, establishing himself as an able manager with Boston fans. He was given considerable credit for his exceptionally clever handling of Braves' pitchers.

In one way, the new manager is fortunate. He will assume direction of a club which has lost only one player in the draft since October. Too, the club is on a sound financial basis because of the purchase of a majority of the club's stock by three Boston contractors—Joseph Maney, Guido L. Rugo and Louis R. Perini.

But the road ahead is rough. His contract is for one year and last season, under Stengel, the club finished in sixth place. Total attendance for 1943 was 312,923—a 35,000 drop from the previous year.

Court Rule Change?

Quite a few coaches agreed with Nat Holman, veteran basketball mentor of City College of New York, when he advocated unlimited substitutions for the boys playing on collegiate courts.

Holman's teams at City College have won 276 games while losing 92 until this season—his 25th. So he speaks with authority. He pointed out that the elimination of the center jump has made it "tough for the players." He further suggested that the powers that be get together before the war ends and change the substitution rule to permit unlimited personnel changes.

"Now don't get me wrong," he said, "I don't want to change the character of the game; it has speed today and that's what the fans want. I would just like to see that some of the strain on the players is eased a bit. . . . You could see even better basketball if restrictions on substitutions were lifted. Think what it would mean to rest one of your stars for a minute or two."

Holman, like hundreds of other coaches, has only six or seven capable men on his squad. But as the rules now stand, a player may re-enter the game only twice.

Professor Holman knows the answers. There are few basketball courts in the country that he has missed during his career as player and coach. As a member of the old New York Whirlwinds he once dropped in 28 out of 30 fouls.

Five times during his career as coach Nat has seen his teams miss a perfect season record by one game.

BUSINESS MEN IN BENTON, ARK., HEARTILY DISLIKE 'RED TAPE'

Party Affiliation Matters Little With Opposition to Regulation; Labor Still Backs Government.

By BARROW LYONS

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This is one of a series of articles written for this paper by Barrow Lyons, staff correspondent of Western Newspaper Union. He has just completed an extended trip through the nation and in these reports gives his first-hand impressions of what rural America is thinking as we enter the third year of war and the first weeks of a presidential election year. Any opinions expressed are the writer's and not necessarily those of this newspaper.)

BENTON, ARK.—Ava, Missouri, is traditionally Republican. Benton, Arkansas, is traditionally Democratic.

Yet in both towns they are saying virtually the same hard things about the New Deal. Administration of the OPA and AAA comes in for the most severe criticism. What appears to be unnecessary red tape, regimentation, multiplication of federal jobs and arbitrary exercise of authority have irritated the folk of these two small towns, especially the business men, to high inflammability.

Perhaps the Republican farmers around Ava are less inclined to be violently inimical to the New Deal than the Democratic farmers around Benton.

Opposition to the New Deal springs far less from party affiliation than it does from resentment against multiple restrictions and regulations.

Opposition also rises from a deep-seated idea that the Democratic leaders in Washington are more interested in building power for themselves than in rendering practical service to the people—at least to the hardest working and most intelligent elements of the people.

These attitudes may be right or wrong—but they are the way more and more people in rural districts feel about it. In fact, in Arkansas feeling has risen so high among those who have voted the Democratic ticket all their lives that the situation has aspects of an incipient rebellion. Farmers have openly written defiant letters to federal authorities challenging them to come and enforce the law.

Lawrence B. Burrow, a Little Rock attorney to whom Benton merchants go for legal advice, summed up the situation thus:

"Many small business men are getting their affairs in shape so they can quit after the war. They are the backbone of this part of the country, but Washington hasn't learned it yet. Between high taxes and all kinds of restrictions, Washington has built up a psychology of resentment that in every way is comparable to the attitude of the American colonies toward King George III. You can go back and read the speeches of Patrick Henry, and you'll discover that he felt exactly as most of the merchants and farmers of Arkansas feel today."

Arkansas farmers and business men have gotten to the point where they pay very little attention to many federal regulations. Bootlegging of grain and other farm commodities above ceiling prices is said to be the usual practice, rather than the a usual 3,000 bales. He didn't even bother to cut his soy beans, they were so dried up.

"In this case," he declared, "there is no reason in the world why prices should be restricted. We have so little to sell that the money we receive could hardly cause inflation. On one farm I have a renter who worked the farm from February to the third week in October. He grossed about $1,000 by the end of October. When his crop was in, he took a job in a near-by war plant and earned $65 a week. Which of these occupations do you think is more likely to cause inflation?"

Mr. Sawyer talked at length. His unhappy experiences were many and distressing.

Mrs. George D. Downing, secretary and treasurer of the C. W. Lewis Lumber company, had much to say about the government handling of lumber. When wages were frozen, the pay of lumber workers was fixed at a level so far below that of local war plants that the company has lost a very large proportion of its employees—and is unable to replace them. In 1941 it produced about 9½ million feet of lumber; in 1942 about 5½ million feet, and this year it will produce less than 3½ million feet—despite the fact that lumber is a critical material.

Labor Regulations Trouble Merchant

H. J. Gingles, general retail and wholesale merchant at Benton, feels particularly resentful over the Wage and Hour law and unemployment compensation. One employee who was discharged for drunkenness received unemployment compensation. Two women who remained away from work for several months to have babies drew unemployment compensation, quite illegally; but the fact that they could do so with impunity disturbs him.

But all of Benton is not against the New Deal. The town is close to the bauxite mining region dominated by the operation of the Aluminum Company of America. In this area are several thousand people who work in the aluminum mines and the great government alumina plant near the town of Bauxite.

To this region the Aluminum Workers of America, a CIO union, sent a young man by the name of R. W. Goddard about two years ago. Under his leadership as business agent, Locals 23, 28, 32 and 33 have been organized. He says they include most of the aluminum workers of the area.

"I can't speak officially about the politics of our members," said Mr. Goddard. "But I think I can say unofficially that for the most part they are satisfied with the New Deal. A big percentage are native to Arkansas. I came from Tennessee. They were born Democrats and remain so. I think they feel that the New Deal has truly tried to protect the workers' interest."

As Benton, Arkansas, Views It . . .

Union Leader R. W. Goddard says that even before a labor voters league became active, workers were being urged to pay the $1 poll tax and qualify themselves to vote in Benton. He thinks the result will be a vote three times as big as ever before, dominated largely by the aluminum workers.

In recent weeks 500 of the 1,200 workers in Benton engaged by one aluminum company have been laid off. They were told, according to Mr. Goddard, that lower wages in Brazil made it possible to bring bauxite from South America more cheaply than it could be mined here. The workers fear the Arkansas mines will be closed down. They realize their new strength at the Benton polls will be impaired, if they return to their farm homes.

RUB FOR COLD MISERY

Flies With Young
When frightened, the mother woodcock often flies off with a chick between her legs.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

A gallon of latex is about one-third rubber and two-thirds water.

GR-S, the synthetic rubber now used in civilian tire manufacture, requires more time in being fabricated at factories. With the equipment and labor shortage, this means that the industry has a tremendous problem ahead of it to make the 30 million new tires scheduled for 1944.

Back in 1823, when rubber shoes were shipped here from Brazil, they were not made according to sizes or for left and right feet. Just thick rubber coverings that were stretched over the regular leather shoes. They were solid in winter, gooey in summer.

Red Cross Notes

February is the banner month so far this year for the Red Cross Production Unit. Forty-seven loyal workers put in 412 1-2 hours making twenty-five hundred surgical sponges, forty army kit bags and ten pairs of socks.

The following women made dressings: Mesdames Ebenhack, Boner, Curdin, Reese, Rensink, Anfield Geo. Wannemacher, Arthur Johnson Swanson, Poorman, Webster; Rick Maxwell, Brandriff, Sorenson; Gray Willman, Austin, Wolak; Krause Nieman, Connelly, Jacobs; James Rogers, Wilks, Schoeneck; Terrell and Miss Patricia Boner. The knitters were: Mesdames Rensink, Reese Koester, Nieman; Schmiedeknecht Baldwin, Koehler, Rick and Marquardt. Thank you loyal workers!

At a recent meeting of Red Cross workers mention was made that the surgical dressing centers in Chicago were crowded evenings to capacity by office girls and women causing the turning away of many because of lack of accommodations. This situation has never been noted at the daytime centers where, at times, the housewives' chairs lack occupancy.

Our unit has pledged itself 100 percent to the work of the Red Cross War Fund Campaign and, along with other women of the town, will assist in the raising of Tinleys quota.

"The Red Cross never has failed an American soldier," General MacArthur said. "It has helped him in danger, sustained him in pain and comforted him in dejection."

SERVICEMEN'S NEWS

Dec. 27, 1943

Dear friends and Citizens Service Comm.

I received the very nice Christmas package this week and want to thank you all very much for it. I also received the nice card and picture of the plaque with all the servicemens names on it and I think it is a beautiful piece of work I also would like to thank my many friends who sent me Christmas cards. I would like to write to them individually but I received so many that it is impossible as our spare time is limited. I am now stationed somewhere in the Hawaiian Islands and I like it very much.

The scenery is beautiful here, bananas grow all over and it was quite a treat to me to eat some bananas again as they were quite scarce back in the states. While on a pass I had the chance to visit Honolulu, Waikiki Beach, and also Pearl Harbor. Wages and prices are sky high. If it were possible to bring old model automobiles here they could be sold at an enormous price. I also had the opportunity to see General Marshall while he was visiting the Islands and I think it won't be long that the Japs will wish they never started this war. I will close for this time and wish my many friends a Happy New Year and thanks again for the Christmas package. I also receive the Tinley Times quite regularly.

Your friend,
Elmer Steinborn

The Federated churches of Christ in America set themselves the task of giving every boy and girl religious instruction, and of bringing each family into the fellowship of some church. Some of our members have also enjoyed and received a great blessing from these services. Mr. Carrara has been broadcasting daily over WMBI at 9 a.m.

We surely need our churches revival today, and fill them with the Holy Spirit.

We can not expect souls to be saved outside of our church when those in the church are not walking in the steps of our Saviour.

Are we who are Christians praying daily for our Ministers who are preaching the Gospel? Or are we criticizing him for preaching God's true word?

Psalm 85: 6-7: "Wilt thou not revive us again: that thy people may rejoice in thee? Show us thy mercy Oh Lord and grant us thy salvation."

REP. STATE CANDIDATES TO HOLD RALLY AT JOLIET MARCH 8

Regular Republican candidates in the Primary election Tuesday, April 11, will visit Joliet, Ill. on Wednesday, March 8 for a huge Republican Rally, to be held at the Elks Club.

Governor Dwight H. Green heads the list of speakers, which includes Richard J. Lyons, candidate for United States Senator; Lieut. Governor Hugh W. Cross, candidate for re-nomination, State Senator Arnold P. Benson, candidate for Secretary of State; Auditor Arthur C.

ARNOLD P. BENSON
Senator
Candidate For
Secretary of State

Lueder, candidate for re-nomination Conrad F. Becker, candidate for State Treasurer; Attorney Gen. Geo. F. Barrett, candidate for re-nomination; Former State Senator Earle Benjamin Searcy, candidate for Clerk of the Supreme Court; and Congressman at Large Stephen A. Day, candidate for re-nomination.

Ben L. Berve, chairman of the State Republican Central Central committee, said today that the regular party candidates are receiving big ovations in every community.

Before primary day, the candidates will have visited every one of the 102 counties in the State and they will have visited more than one community in many of these counties, Berve said.

"The campaign is being based on the record of the Republican administration in Illinois since the election of Governor Green and his fellow state officers," Berve said.

"That record speaks for itself. Within the space of three years a cash reserve fund of more than $70,000,000 has been amassed—first in the history of the state. In war service, Illinois has the finest record in the United States, and this record was made under the leadership of the Illinois War Council, of which Governor Green is Chairman and Lieut. Governor Cross and Senator Benson are chairmen of important committees.

"In services for War Veterans, Illinois has become first in the nation under the present Republican administration. Governor Green's Committee on Veteran Rehabilitation and Employment has set up a program which has been endorsed by the American Legion, and recommended as the best state program in the Union. More recently, under the leadership of the Republican administration, the Illinois General Assembly passed legislaties as the best and most workable soldier vote program in the United States."

Keynote of the 1944 campaign was sounded by Governor Green in an address before the Republican National Committee in Chicago just before the beginning of the tour:

"American representative government, versus New Deal centralization or state-socialism is the paramount issue of the day," Governor Green said.

"The main issue in America today is no longer between what we call the 'liberal' and 'conservative' points of view—it is between administrative absolutism as exemplified in the New Deal and free American government in which the people rule through their chosen representatives in their national, state and local governmental institutions.

"We must rededicate America to the civil liberties guaranteed under the Constitution—including freedom of opportunity and enterprise."

I'm a one woman army
... winning victory
right in my kitchen

I used to wish I were a man. I envied men their part in winning victory. Now I realize I can do plenty myself, right here in my own home, to stop the Axis. I have become a one-woman army, waging war on waste and inefficiency. I tend a victory garden, can foods, collect fats for explosives, save waste paper, buy War Bonds with every dollar I can save.

Being in command of a household is no small job. There are vitamin "supply lines" to maintain on rationed foods ... daily housecleaning campaigns to organize ... a budget to balance and still buy War Bonds ... plenty to do.

AND THE QUARTERMASTER CORPS

A family, like an army, marches on its stomach. To keep my family healthy for their war duties, I select their foods methodically, for balanced meals rich in vitamins. I put into practice what I have learned about wartime meal planning. I shun Black Market goods, buy only what I need.

Enlist in the 4 H Club Army—
See your farm or home advisor.

AND THE ORDNANCE CHIEF
I take extra good care of my household "armaments"—work-saving home appliances—for I know they'll be scarce 'til victory. I must make them last. Public Service Company gave me swell free books on their care and use.

AND THE MORALE OFFICER
Busy though I am, I keep my family's morale high, greet them ever with a smile. Their home is spic and cheery. Their meals colorful and tasty—made with the aid of point-wise recipes obtained at my Public Service office.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Somethin' special catch your eye in the paper, Judge?"

"Sure did, Chet...an article here telling about prohibition in India being written off by the Madras government as a dismal failure after a three-year trial. They found out that enforcement was ineffective and that there was a steady increase in bootlegging and other violations of the law which increased penalties failed to check."

"It all goes to prove what I've said time and time again, Chet...prohibition does not prohibit. It's been tried in this country 47 times in the last 33 years and discarded everywhere except in three states. Was found to be a failure and abandoned in Canada, Norway, Sweden, Finland and Russia, too."

"Same thing happens every time...as soon as legal liquor is voted out, bootleg liquor with its crime and corruption moves right in."

Says Ration Token Contract Needs Investigation

By Fred E. Busbey, M. C.

This naturally brings up the question of what other materials could have been used, and were considered at the time the ration token program was adopted by the Office of Price Administration.

It is a well established fact that there is available a large surplus of secondary aluminum in this country, that could have been used for these tokens. I must admit I do not see eye to eye with OPA in their aluminum.

Mr. Bowles also stated in his letter of January 13th: "Finally, Secretary Morgenthau objected to our use of metals, which finally barred them from consideration. We therefore turned to fiber."

Probably Secretary Morgenthau did object to aluminum being used, but so far in my investigation no one has shown me that he ever made a formal objection. I doubt very seriously if this was the real reason for turning to fiber.

In fact one individual who would not give me permission to use his name, led me to believe that one of the reasons the War Production Board might object to the use of secondary aluminum to make these tokens, was the fact that they would be severely criticized by the housewives of the United States, for using this material, after every one had been asked to contribute their aluminum pots and pans to the aluminum scrap drives we have had throughout the country.

Another reason that the OPA will give for not using secondary aluminum for tokens is the time element involved in getting into production. They certainly have had ample time to get into production even with the use of secondary aluminum, because the token program was originally discussed as far back as 1942, and here it is 1944 and it was definitely decided to use tokens more than six months ago.

Quoting again from Mr. Bowles' letter of January 13th:

"The result was that after careful consideration of all factors we decided upon tokens 0.050 of an inch thick and 0.642 in diameter, stamped out round."

Does Mr. Bowles want us to believe that to disregard the Green Duck Company of Chicago, which first brought to the attention of the OPA and the WPB the possibilities of using fiber, and which at no time was considered or consulted in any way, shape, manner or form regarding tokens of a thickness of 0.050, is to be judged "careful consideration."

Mr. Bowles also stated: "The tokens decided upon have now been in production for a considerable period." That statement is true, but that does not give the reader the whole story.

On December 14, 1943, before the Osborne Company had reached substantial production on the small sized tokens, a meeting was held in the office of Colonel Bryan Houston, Deputy Administrator in charge of Rationing, in the Office of Price Administration, which was attended by Colonel Houston and three of his assistants, representatives of the industries that would be adversely affected by this small token, and myself.

At this meeting, a practical demonstration using actual machines was given, showing the harm that this small sized token would do to various locks and automatic machines, after which Colonel Houston definitely promised to stop the program of manufacturing the small sized tokens.

As further proof of Colonel Houston's sincerity in keeping his word, the Office of Emergency Management, who let the contract with the Osborne Register Company, was contacted by Mr. Durant Rose, Director, Business Services Division of OPA, who asked OEM to send word to the Osborne Company to immediately stop production on these tokens. OEM then advised Mr. Rose that they could not stop or cancel the contract unless they had written authority signed by Chester Bowles, or someone who as authorized to issue cancellations of contracts.

Mr. Rose even went so far as to dictate such an order, but we all know now he could not get it signed. So, when Mr. Bowles states that the manufacture of tokens has been going on for sometime, I respectfully submit, Mr. Speaker the manufacture of this nuisance sized token could have been stopped at the very beginning and before so many hundreds of millions of them were already made.

Again, in Mr. Bowles' letter of January 13th he stated:

"Since the tokens are red and blue in color and made out of fiber they have no resemblance to money or to metal tokens."

Mr. Bowles might be interested to know that representatives of both the transit industry and the OPA made numerous streetcar and bus rides in Washington on December 22 and 23, and were successful in many instances in using the red or blue tokens as a fare without detection.

The next statement in Bowles' letter of January 13th, to which I wish to call your attention is entirely misleading.

He says: "We adopted the present program after considerable correspondence and several conferences with the interested parties and with vending-machine distributors and users. The decision was made after careful consideration of all factors in the problem."

Mr. Speaker, as I previously pointed out in these remarks, during last spring and the early part of the summer of 1943, representatives of the OPA met with those from the industries and did work out together the size of these tokens, to be 0.888; but I defy Chester Bowles or anyone else to prove that a single person connected with the industries that would be affected was notified, advised or had any knowledge whatsoever to the effect that the tokens to be issued to the public were going to be of a size 0.642 in diameter, until after the contract for 0.642 tokens was awarded.

Mr. Speaker, the people of this country are loyal and patriotic, and are exceedingly anxious to do every thing they possibly can to cooperate and sacrifice for the winning of the war at the earliest possible date. But it is against this continual bungling and the way the laws are being administered by the bureaucrats in the various agencies of our government, that they raise their voices in protest; and rightfully so.

Pvt. Walter Hentsch

A little late Walter, but congratulations for your 19th birthday. od bless you where ever you go. MOTHER and DAD.

Letters from our boys:

My Dear Ladies:-

The birthday card you mailed me containing the money order reached me last week and I want to thank you very much for remembering me so generously. I wish I could write a long letter and tell you a lot about Italy, but being up here at the front lines does not permit me to have time enough for that. Someday I'll tell you all about it personally.

It does make a soldier real happy to know there are people back home doing things to keep up our spirits over here. A ll of us need such a "booster shot" now and then.

We have been living in fox-holes dug-outs, old houses and barns and even in goat sheds, but we don't mind these discomforts as long as we know that all of you are happy in your homes.

I'd hate to see Mokena homes and the surrounding farm homes, torn down by shells and bombs as some of these Italian towns and homes are.

Again I thank you from the bottom of my heart for your kind remembrance and may God bless you all, and the good work you are doing.

Sincerely, Mark A. Hotchkiss,
Somewhere in Italy

Fort Knox, Ky. —25-2,1944

what is going on in Mokena.

Has all that snow disappeared that you all had about two weeks ago? This past Wednesday and Thursday it was like spring it was really nice and warm as a matter of fact we went out in our shirt sleeves and today it is raining just as hard as it possibly can, as a matter of fact I have never seen weather change so much as it does here.

I think I'll close for now and next time I hope I can write a longer letter.

Thanks again for the paper.
Sincerely, John C. Jamke.

Weather Stations In Greenland

By Bernt Balchen

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Collier's Weekly)

War in the Arctic is a lonely war. It is not a big show like Russia or Italy; there are no vast armies, no major campaigns, no epic battles.

Events are far apart and small. A trawler halts in a hidden cove. A group of men in green German army tunics set up their equipment on the barren beach. A passing dog-sled driver is ambushed and shot. And between these events is nothing but the waiting and the silence.

Evidently the driver of the sled never heard the command to halt. The wind off Greenland's Icecap was sharp, the flying snow crystals stung his face as the team of huskies trotted ahead of him; he pulled his parka hood tighter over his head against the cold.

With two other members of the Greenland Sledge Patrol, he was hurrying back to Eskimonaes after an uneventful two weeks' reconnaissance to the north. There had been no sign of enemy installations along the coast. Nothing aroused his suspicions as he led the way over the shore ice toward the deserted trapper's cabin at Sandodden where they planned to spend the night.

First Man Killed by Enemy.

The first shot, fired from the door of the cabin, struck his lead dog; the animal dropped in its tracks, kicking once or twice convulsively. Before the driver realized what had happened, his second dog leaped into the air and doubled over, biting at a spreading red stain on its white fur. Instinctively he stooped to grab his rifle from the bottom of the sled; a bullet drilled him through the temple, and he fell face forward onto the snow.

That shot, by a Nazi trooper, marked our first fatal conflict with the enemy in Greenland; it was the initial contact with an armed German invasion force anywhere in the Western hemisphere. You did not know—the facts could not be revealed until now—that the Nazis had actually established a foothold on this side of the Atlantic.

You did not know, all last year, that their planes were flying within bombing distance of the shores of North America. Their submarines, refueling in Greenland's silent fjords, were striking at will at our convoys to England and Murmansk. Their well-equipped weather station, on the island's undefended east coast, was in daily radio communication direct with Berlin.

Perhaps you did not even know there was a war in Greenland. It was a secret war, waged in semi-darkness north of the Arctic Circle, on a remote battlefield perpetually locked under 10,000 feet of solid ice.

'Carrying On' at 50 Below.

The weapons were not Tommy guns and tanks; the real heroes of this war were nameless enlisted men working in air force ground crews at 50 below zero, or standing guard on coast guard cutters fighting through the pack ice, or living all winter long in isolated weather stations along the Icecap, buried under 18 feet of snow. Once each day they would tunnel to the surface to take their wind and temperature readings; the rest of the time there was nothing to do but wait.

Look at your map, and you will see that Greenland sits at the top of the globe, the nearest land mass to the North Pole.

From this frozen island in the Arctic there flow winds and currents that set up the storm fronts for all the North Atlantic, for England, for Norway, for the continent itself. Greenland holds the key to tomorrow's weather in Europe.

Every bombing raid we make over Germany depends on our long-range forecasts from the Arctic. The timing, indeed the very success, of our coming invasion may hinge on the fact that we—and not the Nazis—have Greenland today.

The Germans knew the importance of Greenland. From the outset of the war, Nazi weather planes had been patrolling its coast; it was advance information from Greenland that enabled the trapped Scharnhorst and Gneisenau to slip out of harbor, under cover of heavy fog, and pass unmolested within 15 miles of the Dover coast.

Spying 'Scientists.'

For a quarter century, alleged German scientific expeditions had actually been studying the Arctic with an eye to its future military use; their so-called good-will flights across the Atlantic, by way of Greenland, had amassed invaluable meteorological data.

We likewise knew that Greenland was an important frontier. Long before our formal entry into the global struggle, we realized that it would be an essential springboard for any Nazi air-and-sea assault on the North American continent.

Monastery-Fortress Bombed by Allies; Nazis Talk

Left: Benedictine abbey on Mount Cassino which was bombed by U. S. Flying Fortresses. This monastery, which was founded in 529 A. D., had been used as a fortress by enemy troops which were firing down on our men, according to Allied explanations of the bombing. Leaflets were showered on the monastery a day before the bombardment warning the monks and any Italian refugees there to leave. President Roosevelt said that the bombing and shelling of the ancient abbey was justified. Right: German prisoners taken in fighting on the Rapido river in Italy answer questions asked by United States intelligence officer.

Yet several of these hospitals were bombed by Germans in the beachhead area south of Rome. This particular hospital is near Nettuno. Several American nurses have been killed in attacks on such hospitals.

Washington, D. C.

ARMY WIVES AND PROMOTIONS

The extent to which army wives influence promotions, dictate military expediency and dominate the army always has been a matter of warm debate at army posts.

Inside the war department, there are two schools of thought: One admits there is a certain amount of petticoat influence; the other maintains that the army is a man's army and that women have absolutely nothing to do with it.

Those of the former school point to the fact that Gen. John Pershing, when only a captain, married the daughter of Senator Francis Warren of Wyoming, then chairman of the senate military affairs committee, after which Pershing was jumped in rank and became a brigadier general. Then, when Woodrow Wilson faced senate controversy over who should head an American Expeditionary force to France, with many senators demanding Teddy Roosevelt, Wilson selected Senator Warren's son-in-law and thus quashed senate controversy.

The petticoat school also points to the fact that Gen. Douglas MacArthur first married the beautiful daughter of Edward T. Stotesbury, a J. P. Morgan partner, who requested Secretary of War Weeks to advance MacArthur to the rank of major general when most of his West Point classmates were still majors and colonels.

Another example is Mrs. George Patton Jr., wife of the pistol-packing general. Her coolness, poise and charm helped her hot-tempered husband out of a good many peacetime scrapes long before his unfortunate encounter with a sick soldier in Sicily.

In the other school are those who point to a host of high-ranking generals whose wives have had no political influence on their careers. General Marshall's first wife aspired to be an opera singer, was sick for a long time, finally died. General Eisenhower's wife is an unassuming lady who has kept in the background. General Somervell, until recently, was a widower.

'Warning' to Fliers' Wives.

Now, however, comes a new argument in this controversy. General "Hap" Arnold, chief of the army air forces, has been put squarely on record by Col. Alfred L. Jewett, commander of the air forces technical school at Gulfport, Miss., as recognizing that wives influence an officer's promotion.

Colonel Jewett himself doesn't make any bones about it. He says that an air force officer's "efficiency report" is affected by "activities by his wife." The "activities" in this case refers to joining the Gulfport Field Women's club. Colonel Jewett last month sent out a circular letter to all officers under him, virtually ordering their wives to join the club.

He even went so far as to warn that, "in the event that any officers' wives do not wish to belong, it is desired that their husbands so state in a letter to the commanding officer, such letter to be submitted prior to the fifth of the month following the date the officer reported to the station for duty."

And then, apparently afraid that his subordinates might not take the hint in the none-too-subtle warning, Colonel Jewett laid it right on the line by invoking the authority of General Arnold.

"Active participation in the work of the Women's club is a matter in which higher authority, including the chief of the air forces, is vitally interested," warned Colonel Jewett bluntly. "And every officer in the air forces may expect to find his efficiency report affected by the manner of participation in these activities by his wife."

So there it is in black and white.

CLEANLINESS NEXT TO GODLINESS

Take it from Lieut. Col. Jimmy Roosevelt, the President's son, the first thing a fighting man thinks about after a hard battle is a bath. Jimmy, who distinguished himself with the marines in the South Pacific, was recently telling friends about some of his war experiences.

"We had a pretty tough time of it on Guadalcanal, as everybody knows," Jimmy related. "After one of the first hard battles was over, some of us were taken aboard a navy ship. The first thing they offered us was a square meal. But we weren't hungry. We had managed very well on our K rations. What we all wanted was a bath. But I guess the soap and water sharpened up our appetites, for we just about cleaned out the ship's larder afterwards."

CAPITAL CHAFF

AMG (Allied Military Government) is facing a tough problem regarding 300,000 tons of oranges and 300,000 tons of lemons waiting to be picked in Sicily and southern Italy. The fruit is ripe, but men can't be spared from the front to pick it. Meanwhile, we are forced to ship some dried citrus into Italy.

American Zionists point out that Palestine has contributed more to the war effort than any other country in the Near East, including the manufacture of land mines.

"I'd started working nights, and with my way of living changed around, I soon found I was taking 3 or 4 laxatives a week, and feeling terrible. Then I heard about KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN through your radio program, 'The Breakfast Club.' Since taking my daily helping of ALL-BRAN, I am regular as clockwork. Thanks for what your ALL-BRAN has done for me!" Mrs. Myrtle Wood, 274 Baumanville St., Akron, Ohio.

Yes, it does seem like magic, the way KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN helps so many people. "Gets at" one common cause of constipation—lack of enough dietary "cellulose" elements! That's because ALL-BRAN is one of Nature's most effective sources of these elements—which help the friendly colonic flora fluff up and prepare the colonic contents for easy, natural elimination! KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is not a purgative! It's a gentle-acting, "regulating" food!

If your constipation is this kind, eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly, with milk and fruit, or mixed with other cereals. Drink plenty of water. See if you don't find real help! Insist on genuine ALL-BRAN, made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

THE STORY THUS FAR: Lieut. Col. Frank Kurtz, pilot of the Flying Fortress known as "The Swoose," which escaped from Clark Field, tells of that fatal day when the Japs struck in the Philippines. Old 99, another Fortress, is struck down before it can get off the ground, killing eight of her crew. Kurtz and his men are getting ready for a reconnaissance trip over Formosa when they heard the whistling of bombs. They can for the nearest foxholes and stayed in them until the first Jap formation flew away. Then they get what antiaircraft is available, in action. The field is littered with the charred skeletons of Flying Fortresses, including Old 99. They plan to salvage the wrecks.

CHAPTER IV

"A lot of damned fools were waving flashlights around unnecessarily, and I thought, 'Suppose a Jap Recco plane catches a glint of this.' Pretty soon I heard a plane and raised up to listen, but when it came in plain I recognized the deep four-motor grind of one of our own Fortresses—it was undoubtedly one of the dozen which had been left down on Del Monte Field, now coming in from the long trip from Mindanao to spend the rest of the night on Clark and in the morning pound some of those scores of Jap transports which were said to be swarming off Luzon.

"And I hoped to God that single remaining runway strip had been cleared so they could get down, and they wouldn't have to circle and go back home. Just then a nervous antiaircraft battery opened up on the Fortress, and then they all did.

"And what about Margo, halfway around the world? Had she heard anything? And how long would it be before I could tell her that Eddie Oliver and I were all that were left of Old 99 she had waved goodbye to at Albuquerque six weeks ago? Or would I ever tell her?

"I had promised the boys this was just the opening game and that there were a lot more Saturdays coming, so what did it matter if this first one belonged to the Japs? In the end we would win. Only now I began wondering about that sprawling line and where it pointed to. Maybe it trailed off into nothing, and at the end would be only chaos and defeat. I didn't know, and when I realized it would do no good to guess or hope, then I went to sleep.

"Over at the field, six of the Mindanao gang had come up from Del Monte, coming in two and three at a time and landing on the two-thousand-foot strip of runway which was all that remained of Clark Field. Then they had been pulled off into dispersed areas while they were gassed up and loaded with bombs. The pilots of this half-dozen were now assembled while the Colonel gave them their targets, and towering over the group was Colin Kelly—I could see his curly black head, his shoulders back as usual. I knew the boys would be headed out into plenty of trouble, and I couldn't help walking over to listen while the Colonel briefed Colin. I felt a little brotherly about him because he'd been one of my co-pilots back on March Field. Now he was headed out on his first battle mission.

"Colin was photographing every word in his mind. He looked tired from flying all night, had had little if any sleep—his ordinarily neat uniform was smeared with grease as though he'd been working on his engines himself—and we had time only to exchange waves as he headed for his plane to load his bombs and I climbed up into the tower.

"The thing was practically a sieve from bullets which had ripped through the corrugated iron during yesterday's strafing. A couple of privates had been up there for twenty-four hours without food or relief—I guess everybody must have forgotten them, but they'd done a swell job. Looking at all those jagged holes in the sheet-iron walls, I didn't see how they'd come out alive, but they explained it—told me if I got strafed, I could lie down along one sheet-iron wall behind a pile of lead battery cases used to run the field lights.

"My job of course was to handle the tower lights—give the boys the signal when they could come in to land on the field—but the Colonel wasn't taking any chances losing any more on the ground. He said when any Fortresses came back, to keep them in the air, circling the field, until he changed the order.

"Presently there comes scouting in one of those little low P-26's that were used by the Filipino Air Force—an old stick-and-wire job with non-retractable landing gear which is practically a museum piece. I give him the green light, because I can see he is already so full of bullet holes I don't see how he can stay in the air—and out jumps this little Filipino fighter pilot. All he wants is more gas and more bullets for his little .30-caliber gun, and he's back up in the air for more of it. Those kids did a magnificent job for their islands with that decrepit junk.

"Everybody was jumpy—we didn't know what minute the Japs would come back. I watched one truck that was wandering around the field with a gang filling up bomb craters. Suddenly the air-raid bell sounded, and those guys dived out of the truck in every direction to run for foxholes, leaving the driverless truck to keep wandering right on over onto its nose in a shell crater. Those phony alerts were a constant strain, even though each one was called off fifteen minutes later. I've since wondered if maybe fifth-columnists weren't turning in most of them.

"That morning our fighters (yesterday's raid had left maybe fifteen out of the two dozen which had been on Iba Field) were doing a magnificent job. And learning, too—this was their first day of real fighting, and there is just a hell of a lot about war that you can't find in any book and that they can't teach you in maneuvers. Buzz Wagner, the best fighter of them all, would have told you that.

"Buzz, with a single P-40, had done a job that ordinarily would be assigned to an entire squadron. (A fighter squadron is 25 planes.) Buzz had been sent out in the early morning full of ammunition for his six .50-caliber guns and with 30-pound fragmentation bombs under his wings, so he was ready to tackle almost anything he saw.

"He was out over the sea north of Luzon, sitting on the overcast, when suddenly a terrific ack-ack barrage came snorting up at him through the cloud layer. There was so much of it Buzz figured it must have been at least a Jap battleship shoveling it up at him, so he was pulling off to the south—still staying above the cloud layer—when he spotted four Jap fighters high above him. He was tempted to dump his bombs—which would give him more speed and maneuverability—and go up there to tangle with them, but those bombs, according to his briefing, were destined for some planes the Japs had just put ashore on a field near Lingayen, so he kept on his course.

"But all of a sudden about three bushels of red-hot Jap tracers came whizzing by his cockpit. He pushed the stick forward to nose her down, and then in a climbing turn to the right pulled her back up into the sun—and then he looked back to see that two of the four Jap fighters had detached to work him over.

"They were coming hell-for-breakfast, so he pulled a cute maneuver—throttled back suddenly to let them go roaring on by him, and then opened up on their vanishing tails. His first burst put them both on fire. Those good old .50-calibers—the P-40 had six of them and when they speak, they do all the talking.

"Remember all this time Buzz hadn't dumped his bombs. They might easily have cost him his life, but his job was to get to Lingayen Field, where he had a rendezvous with Lieutenant Russell Church.

"As he approached Lingayen, first he saw Russ, who fell in on his wing, and then he saw his target—all those Jap planes on the ground lined up just like it was for an ordinary peacetime Saturday-morning inspection. I want you to get this—to see it isn't only the American Air Force which gets caught with its pants down and its suspenders trailing.

"They started the long glide down, circling the field, and then Buzz peeled off and started in on them. Russ was to follow, but at a good distance, so he wouldn't pick up in his propellers the fragments of Jap planes tossed up by Buzz's frag bombs.

"So down they went—Buzz first, then Russ, just skimming the field. As the first target came into sight Buzz let go first one and then the other of his 30-pound fragmentation bombs, and looking back over his shoulder, he saw old Russ was just coming in behind him. Buzz went on across the field and then pulled up sharply to watch Russ' bombs go right down the line. Russ' tail was on fire from Jap ack-ack, and he knew it, but he stayed dead on his run, making direct hits on those neatly lined-up Jap planes, and then—Buzz still watching—Russ pulled up at the end of the field in a slow half-roll and—went in. Buzz says it's just possible Russ was able to bail out—he couldn't wait to be sure, for now he was getting ready for his second run, all alone. He came in on this second pass through the Jap ack-ack with his six .50-calibers pounding away at those parked planes—some were already burning from the bombs he and Russ had dropped—crossed the field once, and had banked to come in for a third pass when Jap tracers began whizzing past his cockpit from behind. He looked over his shoulder to see that the last two of those four Zeros were diving on him. Of course there was nothing he could do but push his throttle up to the fire wall—jamming on all the gas his engine would take—and try to get away.

(Air force slang meaning his plane went into the ground.)

"Inch by inch he pulled away from those Zeros—he looked back at the field once and saw about six good fires going—and Buzz said it was damned lucky he got back to the field, because he could tell the boys that a P-40 could outrun a Zero at sea level. Remember, though, he said outrun, not outmaneuver.

"In those days everybody was learning stuff that wasn't in the book, and passing it on. Everybody had to learn, which is why we don't get bitter at being mishandled at first.

"But Buzz always hated to talk about himself. 'Did you hear about the Rat?' he asked me, very excited. The Rat of course was our old friend Lieutenant Sam Marrett, who had picked up this nickname at Randolph Field because of his pointed nose and small face. 'The Rat took four wingings out on patrol, and they were laying back above a hillside on Lingayen when they spotted a Jap landing party, so they climbed to get altitude and then peeled off out of the sun onto it—the Rat leading, of course—in one long string, each picking his barge. What happened no one knew for sure. But one of the Rat's bullets must have touched off the magazine racks in the Jap barge he picked, anyway the barge blew right up in his face, and the Rat's plane disintegrated. But the other four kids continued on their runs, first dropping their frag bombs, and then strafing back and forth—they had Japs diving off those barges in every direction.'

"That day," said Frank, "my job was the tower, not going on missions myself or even listening to gossip. A little after noon I happened to be looking up at the overcast toward the roar made by one of our planes which I thought maybe would be trying to come in when suddenly I saw a parachute blossom just under the overcast—and another—and another. I counted eight, so it must be a Fortress—but no ninth. Instead, at the very end of these eight I saw a dark object go hurtling into the ground. One of our Forts, but whose? I didn't find out until evening that it was Colin Kelly. He'd been out there following his briefing that I'd heard that morning, which was to attack Jap transports and their naval escorts. He'd laid a direct hit square on the very biggest target any pilot could hope for and had been on his way home—had been about to let down through that overcast onto Clark Field—when two Jap fighters, who had been hanging on ever since he left the convoy, hit him. They put a lucky incendiary into his oxygen system, and of course it started to burn like cotton soaked in gasoline. But Colin wasn't rattled. He gave the regular orders over the interphone system for the other eight boys of his crew to climb into their chutes and abandon ship.

"Now a part of this procedure in a Fortress is that the pilot must be the last to leave. It's the same in the Navy, except that it's sometimes just a gallant gesture, particularly when the captain can't help much by staying, and if the ship does go down under him he can float away from the bridge in his life jacket, and pretty soon someone's giving him a slug of rye and a brisk rub-down in the wardroom of another ship.

"But in the Air Force it's the real McCoy. Because if a Fortress is on fire, somebody has to stay on the stick to keep her level and right side up while the other eight make their jumps. That somebody is the pilot, and that's one of the things you must be ready to do in order to wear those pretty silver wings on your chest that the better-upholstered girls stare at in the better-upholstered bars.

"Well, Colin stayed on the stick as his plane dropped with its oxygen system flaming, and all eight got out, and I suppose carefully counted one thousand—two thousand—three thousand like it says in the book, before they pulled their cords and their chutes blossomed.

"But by the time the last one was out, and Colin got his own chute out, and opened his top escape-hatch window above that fume-filled cockpit and crawled up through it—well, he cleared the plane all right, but he was so close to the ground that he never had a chance to crack his chute.

JESUS URGES HIS DISCIPLES TO WATCH

LESSON TEXT: Mark 13:3-10, 31-37.
GOLDEN TEXT: Watch ye therefore: for ye know not when the master of the house cometh.—Mark 13:35.

God has a plan, and even now when men seem to have turned all order into chaos, we know that God is working out His purpose. The important crisis in that plan of God which we now await is the return of Christ, His second coming.

He will come secretly to call His own Church, the Bride, to Himself, and then He will come openly, in great glory, when every eye shall behold Him. Then His enemies shall be confounded, and His eternal kingdom be established.

We look for His coming, but while we wait (and it may not be long!) we are to occupy for Him until He comes. Our lesson tells men

I. What to Expect While Waiting for Christ (vv. 3-9).

First, we note that we are to expect the coming of false teachers and false Christs, who will claim to be the fulfillment of the prophetic Scriptures. We need only one admonition concerning them, "Take heed that no man lead you astray."

There have always been such false leaders who for the prominence or gain afforded them are willing to offer bewildered mankind all sorts of panaceas whereby it is supposed to solve its problems. It seems that these men increase in numbers when great crises, such as war, come upon the nations. Do not be misled by them. Just because a man seems to be devout and professes to be interested in Christ's return does not make him a dependable teacher. Are not these the very ones Jesus warned against? They must meet the test of all of God's Word.

Christ warns believers that before the end of the age there will be world-wide war, earthquakes in many places, and famines. These are to be expected, and will come. But here a word of caution is needed. We must not seize upon present events and rush out (or into print) and tell people that "this is it!"

We should be alert in relating world events to the teaching of Scripture, but let us "make haste slowly." But let no one assume that the need for caution justifies him in ignoring either the Word or world events. We are to be alert, well informed, spiritual and ready.

II. What to Do While Waiting for Christ (v. 10).

Preach the gospel! That is our first and most important business. Our Lord said that the whole world was to be evangelized before the end came. Please note carefully that He did not say that all nations will be saved, but that they will hear the gospel.

That is our responsibility—to see to it that every nation has a full and free opportunity to hear the blessed gospel message. We have not done it, and the failure of the Church at that point is a dark blot on its record.

There seems to be a revival of interest in the work of missions now, and there are many who believe that at the close of this war almost the entire world will be open for Christian missionaries. This will probably be true for a limited time only, and it is the urgent business of the Church now to prepare the missionaries who will then be needed.

And in the meantime we should all be busy about the all-important matter of teaching and preaching the gospel. It is the best preparation for the coming of Christ and the thing we would want to be doing when He comes.

III. How to Live While Waiting for Christ (vv. 31-37).

There should be an air of expectancy constantly characterizing the Christian. We are looking for Someone—yes, a very definite and glorious One—our Lord Himself.

We do not know when He will come (v. 32). That is a matter hidden in the eternal counsels of God the Father, a secret into which angels do not pry, and which even the Son did not know. Why then do foolish men attempt to learn it? Beware of any man who sets a date for Christ's return or for the end of the age. He is setting himself up as being superior to Christ, and you can be sure that he is an impostor.

We do not know the day, but of the fact we are sure. Christ is coming again! So we are to be watchful as we wait. God has not called us to stand idle, looking for the dawning of that glorious day. We are to be about His business, but everywhere and always, wide awake and looking for Him.

That kind of a believer (and all believers should be that kind) will pray. We are to "watch and pray." They go together. The one who prays will watch. The one who watches will pray. Possibly some of us are not praying because we have fallen asleep and no longer watch for His coming. Then too we probably fell asleep because we did not pray.

Do not paint over whitewash. Wash off the whitewash with clear water and allow the walls to dry thoroughly before applying the paint.

When shortening a dress, snap a rubber band around a yardstick at the desired length line and measure the dress from the floor.

To avoid stretching, line the pockets of knitted sweaters with satene.
